With this result, the agriculture sector accumulates a growth rate of 1.9 percent at November 2013.

second fishing season of the year –from November 2013 to January 2014–, as well as from an increased catch of species for human consumption (scallops, hake, and prawns for the production of frozen products; hake and bonito for consumption as fresh fish, and tuna for the production of canned fish products). Between January and November, the sector accumulates an increase of 5.7 percent.

Output in the mining and hydrocarbons sector recorded a growth rate of 7.8 percent in November due to a higher extraction of natural gas, zinc, copper, and gold. In January–November the sector accumulated a growth rate of 2.6 percent.

Manufacturing production fell 1.1 percent as a result of lower activity in the non-primary manufacturing subsector, offset by a higher production of primary resources like that observed in the fishing industry. Lower activity was noteworthy in the non-primary manufacturing industrial branches of glass containers, automobile accessories and spare parts, knit garments, rice milling, and asparagus processing. Between January and November, the sector accumulates a growth rate of 1.4 percent.

The construction sector grew 2.3 percent in November and accumulated a growth rate of 9.2 percent in the period of January– November.

Price of gold at US$ 1,238.0 per troy ounce

In the same period, the price of gold fell 1.1 percent to US$ 1,238.0 per troy ounce.

The fall in the price of gold was influenced by expectations that the Federal Reserve will reduce again its monthly bond-buying program and by the appreciation of the dollar against the euro, which reduced the appeal of gold as an investment option.

In January 14-21, the price of copper fell 0.1 percent to US$ 3.33 per pound.

The decline in the price of copper was influenced by prospects of a weak demand from China. However, this decline was offset by a low availability of copper for immediate consumption due to port strikes in Chile.

Between January 14 and January 21, the price of zinc fell 1.3 percent to US$ 0.94 per pound.

The price of zinc was affected by fears of a lower demand from Asia and by increased inventories at the warehouses of the London Metal Exchange (LME).

resumen informativo

The price of WTI crude oil rose 2.6 percent to US$ 95.0 per barrel between January 14 and January 21.

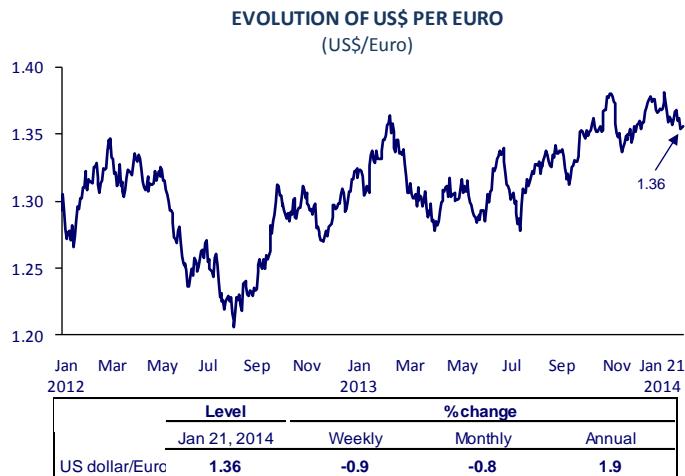

The rise in the price of crude was associated with a higher-than-expected fall in crude inventories in the USA and with a higher demand for heating fuels due to the wave of cold temperatures in this country. However, the rise in the price of crude oil was offset by expectations of a greater supply from Libya and Iran.

Dollar appreciated 0.9 percent against the euro

In January 14-21, the dollar appreciated 0.9 percent against the euro.

The dollar strengthened against the euro due to the better economic outlook for the U.S. economy after reports indicated that the U.S. industrial production has recently shown its fastest pace of growth in three and a half year.

Yield on 10-year U.S. Treasuries at 2.83 percent

In the week of January 14 to January 21, the 3-month Libor remained at 0.24 percent.

In the same period, the yield on the 10-year US Treasury bonds fell from 2.87 percent to 2.83 percent.

During the week of January 14-21, the General Index and the Selective Index of the Lima Stock Exchange (LSE) increased 2.5 and 2.8 percent, respectively.

The indices of the LSE rose as investors took positions on several stocks due to the favorable evolution of global markets and expectations of a sound growth in the local economy.

So far this year, the indices of the LSE accumulate increases of 4.9 and 6.1 percent, respectively.
