On April 1, the EMBIG Peru indicator recorded 155 bps and the EMBIG LatAm recorded 386 bps.

In March, the average country risk, measured by the EMBIG Peru spread, fell from 183 bps in February to 167 bps.

On the other hand, the average Latin America spread fell 48 basis points due to lower risk aversion after positive employment and confidence data in the United States and due to lower uncertainty about Ukraine.

Price of gold at US$ 1,283.8 per troy ounce

On April 1, the price of gold registered US$ 1,283.8 per troy ounce.

The average price of gold in March was US$ 1,336.1 per troy ounce, 2.7 percent higher than in the previous month.

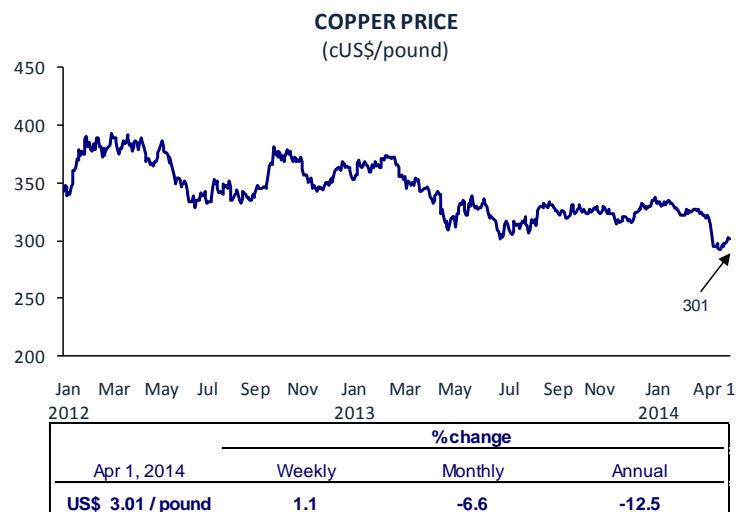

The rising conduct of gold in this period was supported by the depreciation of the dollar against the euro and by an increased demand for gold as a hedge asset associated with the Russian-Ukrainian crisis.

The price of copper on April 1 was US$ 3.01 per pound.

In March, the price of copper dropped 6.8 percent relative to February and showed an average price of US$ 3.02 per pound.

The price of copper fell due to greater concerns about China's economic slowdown (after reports showed negative trade and credit data) and by the rise of copper inventories in this country.

On April 1, the price of zinc was US$ 0.89 per pound.

The average price of zinc in March was US$ 0.91 per troy ounce, 1.0 percent lower than in the previous month.

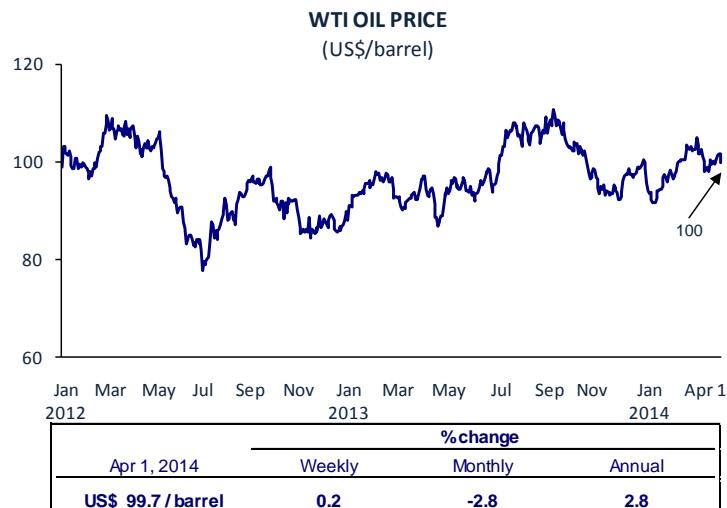

This drop in the price of zinc reflected the rise of inventories in the main metal exchange markets and fears that China's economic slowdown may affect the demand for this metal.

On April 1, the price of WTI crude oil was US$ 99.7 per barrel.

The average price of WTI oil in March was US$ 100.6/barrel, a price level 0.2 percent lower than in February.

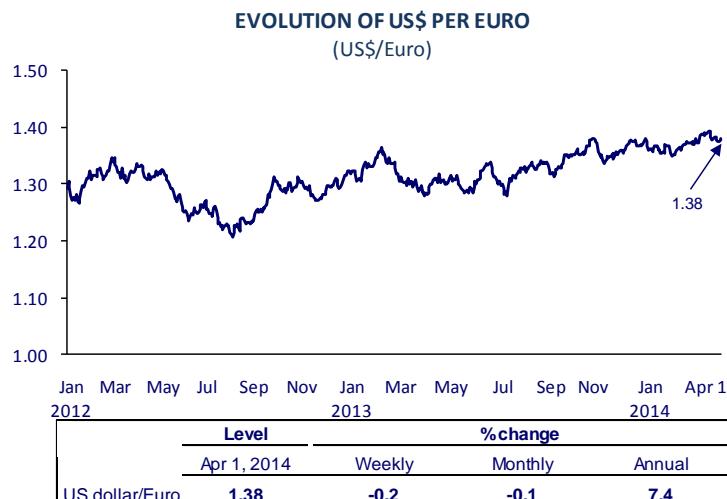

The decline in the price of crude was associated with a higher-than-expected increase of inventories and the announcement that reserves of crude will be sold in the United States, although this decline was offset by supply concerns as a result of geopolitical tensions in Ukraine.

Dollar-euro exchange rate: US$ 1.38 per euro

On April 1, the US dollar-euro exchange rate was US$ 1.38 per euro.

In March, the dollar depreciated 1.1 percent on average against the euro as a result of the European Central Bank's announcement that it will maintain its interest rate unchanged at 0.25 percent, in a context of increased optimism about a gradual economic recovery in Europe.

Yield on 10-year US Treasuries at 2.75 percent

On April 1, the 3-month Libor recorded 0.23 percent and the yield on the 10-year US Treasury bonds recorded 2.75 percent.

In March, the 3-month Libor was 0.24 percent while the yield on the 10-year US Treasury bonds recorded a rate of 2.72 percent, 2 bps lower than in the previous month, following signals of the Federal Reserve indicating that it will maintain the pace of withdrawal of its asset purchase program.

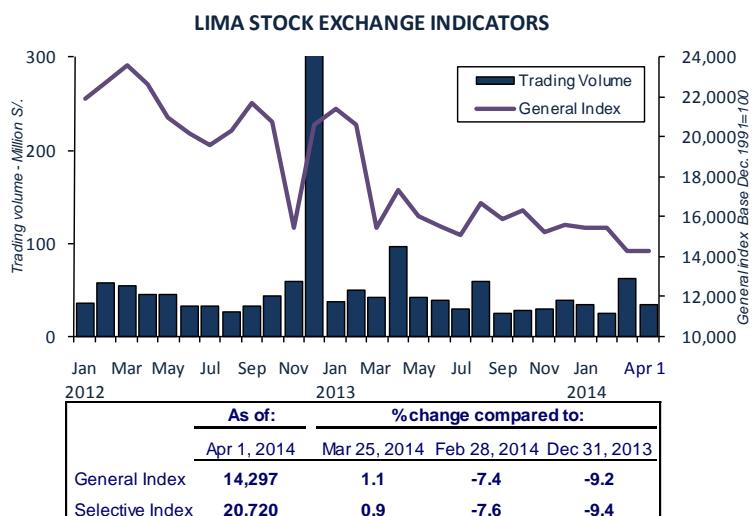

Lima Stock Exchange

In March, the General Index of the Lima Stock Exchange (LSE) fell 7.4 percent and the Selective Index of the LSE fell 7.7 percent.

The indices of the LSE were affected by investors' caution in view of the drop of the international prices of metals and by greater fears about China's slowdown.

Year-to-date (at April 1), the indices of the LSE have accumulate declines of 9.2 percent and 9.4 percent, respectively.
