In the week of October 7–October 14, the price of copper rose 1.0 percent to US$ 3.08 per pound.

The price of copper rose mainly due to the growth of China's imports of copper in September, when it registered a maximum high in five months.

In the same period, the price of zinc rose 0.7 percent to US$ 1.05 per pound.

The rise in the price of zinc reflected the decline of inventories in the London Metal Exchange and China's favorable trade data.

In October 7 – 14, the price of WTI oil dropped 7.9 percent to US$ 81.8 per barrel.

The price of crude was affected by evidence of a slowdown in the demand, as well as by signals of a global oversupply of crude, as reflected in the increase of weekly inventories in the United States.

US dollar appreciated against the euro

Between October 7 and October 14, the dollar appreciated 0.1 percent against the euro.

The US dollar strengthened slightly against the euro after the publication of data indicating a higher weakening of growth in the Eurozone.

Yield on 10-year US Treasuries at 2.20 percent

Between October 7 and October 14, the 3-month Libor remained at 0.23 percent.

On the other hand, the yield on the 10-year US Treasuries dropped 14 basis points to 2.20 percent after the IMF revised down its growth forecast.

Lima Stock Exchange

In the week of October 7-October 14, the General Index of the Lima Stock Exchange (LSE) grew 1.3 percent and the Selective Index grew 1.1 percent.

The behavior of both indices was favored by the rise in the prices of basic and precious metals.

Year-to-date, the General Index has fallen 0.9 percent and the Selective Index has fallen 6.5 percent.
